

ABSTRACT

Methods and apparatus control the loading of a memory buffer. The memory buffer may have a watermark with a first watermark value and can receive an advance indication of a memory service interruption. Based at least in part on the received advance indication of the memory service interruption, the watermark can be modified to have a second watermark value different from the first watermark value.

10

05416964 120099

2207/7533